

Create a Permit

Step 1: Applicants must first open an account on the ‘Plans and Permits’ portal.

TIP: Residential Self-Service permits follow a separate streamlined approval process.

TIP: Contractors (General, Mechanical, Plumbing, others) need an updated registration number. Registration status is maintained on the City’s website; <https://etrakit.friscotexas.gov/etrakit/>.

TIP: It is important to know the Project address for an efficient application process.

TIP: Make sure all required fields (*) are completed.

Step 2: Residential Building Permit review applications begin by selecting the type and naming the project.

Start New Application Request

To start a new application request:

- Select a permit request type from the menu. If you do not see the type you are looking for, it may not be available.
- Provide a project name for your future reference. This could contain the address, type of work being performed, owner name.
- Click the “Start Application Process” button.

If you are a registered contractor, you must have a current registration number available. Most of them look like this: RXX-XXXX. To look up your number, visit <https://etrakit.friscotexas.gov/etrakit/Search/aec.aspx>

For more information including detailed help documentation, visit <http://www.friscotexas.gov/plansandpermits>. Email questions to bicsr@friscotexas.gov.

Self Service permits offer immediate access to select residential permits when replacing: Heating/cooling systems, roofs with the same material, water heaters, doors and windows, and minor electrical and plumbing projects.

Residential Building Permit reviews include new home construction, demolitions, fences, additions or alterations, temporary construction and others.
